DIFFICULTIES FOR WIFE MAINTENANCE

Most of our working female clients have voiced concerns that their husbands never pay maintenance because they are earning from their job or their husbands stopped giving them maintenance once they started working.

ISSUES IN CHILD CUSTODY & CHILD MAINTENANCE

Our divorced female clients who were previously in a polygamous marriage stated however, that their husband usually would not argue over custody of the children upon him having a new family but the issue of visitation rights becomes more important for husbands or fathers.

Regardless of who has custody of the child, the father is obligated to provide for the child.

Many of our clients usually would not go to court to claim for unpaid maintenance as they feel that it will only lead them to a dead end because the father has no means anyway.

ISSUES ON CHILDREN BORN OUT OF WEDLOCK

Under the current Islamic Family Law, biological fathers have no legal obligation to provide maintenance for his anak tak sah taraf.

Our client is facing difficulties fulfilling the responsibility for his biological child, due to legal restrictions that prohibit the child in his name. For now, the alternative under the law is that the father has to register his biological child as an adopted child.
